Who We Are

<https://centreforethics.upce.cz/en>

The Centre for Ethics as Study in Human Value at the Department of Philosophy and Religious Studies of the University of Pardubice was founded in 2017. We are focusing our research on the distinctive value of human life and the ways in which this value may be either recognised or overlooked in both personal and political contexts. We are aiming to develop a conception of the nature and value of humanity and to apply it to a range of personal and political issues, including attitudes towards marginalised groups and issues surrounding populism, nationalism, religious conflict, migration and a changing European identity. We are an international research centre; our members come from 14 different countries. We have a Master program in Ethics and Political Philosophy and a PhD school in Philosophy in English.

How To Apply

Send an abstract of your talk and a cover sheet

to LesleyPaige.Jamieson@upce.cz by January 5th, 2024

Abstract of your talk (approximately 200–400 words): describe the ethical or political problem/topic that you want to address and the central claim that you want to defend.

⚠ Please do not include your name or any other personal details in your abstract, so we can make an impartial decision about your acceptance based on your work only!

Cover sheet should include: the title of your talk matching the title of your abstract; your name; your university; year of study; email address.

We will let you know about your acceptance by January 19th, 2024.

Guests are welcome to visit without giving a talk!
